SAID a business man: "A few days ago a paper dollar was started in circulation. It had attached a piece of paper, requesting everybody who got it to sign their names, and then turn the money out as quickly as possible, with a view of having it come back from whence it started. In twenty days the dollar came back, and the names showed that sixty persons had had it in that time."

THE Washington correspondent of The Courier-Journal says if Colonel Will S. Hays had never written that campaign song, "Cleveland is the Man," he might have been appointed Supervising Inspector instead of Capt. Thompson. In the way of endorsement for the position Hays had a thousand of the finest in the world, and the successful man only a brief mention of his name. This is the way President Cleveland sometimes does things.

THE Department of Agriculture gives the condition of wheat on the first day of April as 86.7 per cent. for the entire country, while at the same date last year it was only 77.4. This confirms that the wheat crop of this country was not materially damaged by the March freeze.

BREAKS THE RECORD.

Miss Bessie Wadsworth Sends 130,000 Stamps For Miss Rose.

People read THE LEDGER! No better proof of this can be given than is found in the numerous and liberal contributions of postage stamps sent in to this office in response to the appeal in behalf of Miss Dollie Rose of Manchester.

But liberal as have been the responses it has remained for Miss Bessie Wadsworth of this city to surpass all others.

Saturday she sent us one hundred and thirty thousand stamps, all nicely arranged in packages of 100 each.

They can be seen in the window of THE LEDGER office for a few days, and they are worth looking upon.

For this "labor of love" we are sure Miss Wadsworth will receive the prayers of the afflicted young lady for whose relief the stamps are intended.

THE FIVE MEETINGS.

They Closed Last Night With a Phenomenal Attendance.

The Five revival has closed. That the Evangelist did much good by his presence here will not be denied.

At all the services yesterday the houses were packed.

Last night Mr. Fife preached to an immense crowd at the First Baptist Church, and afterward he addressed an "overflow" meeting at the First Presbyterian Church, concluding the services with a farewell at 11 o'clock.

He left this morning for Charleston, W. Va., where he will preach tonight, after which he goes to his home at Charlotte, N. C.

All the congregations that have been represented in the union services that have been held in the First Baptist Church will meet this evening in their respective houses of worship for the purpose of receiving any applications for membership that may be made and for the purpose of holding any additional services it would be wise for them to hold. A full attendance of the congregations of these various churches is earnestly requested. Let the Christian Endeavorers and other societies also be present, as there will be an especial work for them.

MISS POLLARD WINS.

JUDGMENT AGAINST THE DISHONORABLE WM. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE.

The Jury Gives the Girl $15,000—But What Will She Get?—Willie Moves For a New Trial, and is Still a Democrat.

Judge Wilson finished his argument in the Breckinridge-Pollard trial at half past 2 o'clock Saturday.

Judge Bradley then delivered his charge to the jury, which retired shortly after 3.

The jurors were not so long in agreeing upon a verdict as was anticipated, and after being out only an hour and twenty-eight minutes returned a judgment in favor of the plaintiff, fixing the damages at $15,000.

Colonel Breckinridge rose slowly to his feet.

All those who saw his face say it was nearly as white as his beard, but his voice was as clear as usual when he spoke in a hesitating way, saying, "I do not know the practice of this Court, but I wish to give the usual notice of a motion for a new trial."

Miss Pollard was not in the Courtroom, and her attorneys reported that she did not care to say anything about the verdict.

When a messenger reached her room with the news she exclaimed: "Oh, isn't it good, isn't it good?" and then burst into sobs.

Major Butterworth said: "I don't care to say anything," and walked dejectedly away toward his office.

That Miss Pollard will not be financially bettered by the result of her case is probable, because it is well understood and has been said on trial that Breckinridge has no property. He has lived up to his income for years, and although his wife has money, it does not seem likely that she will care to expend it to satisfy this judgment.

Notwithstanding the verdict, which was wholly unexpected to him, Breckinridge persists in remaining a candidate for renomination.

Will the Ashland District endorse him? We will see what we will see.

FRANKFORT must be in a bad fix. She wants either Mr. Moody or "Sham" Jones to hold a revival there. What's the matter with having both of the two of 'em.

TARIFF AND POLITICS.

Why They Should Be Separated For the Nation's Welfare.

At the annual meeting of the Political Science Club in New York the subject was discussed, "Should the Tariff Question Be Taken Out of Politics?" Congressman Joseph C. Hendrix of Brooklyn, who was the principal speaker, discussed it in an elaborate manner. He said in part:

"The suggestion that the Tariff question should be taken out of politics is gratefully received by every man who is in touch with our industrial conditions, and is conscious of the dangerous stimulation and resulting reaction incident to the adoption of a high Tariff or of the collapse and uncertainty attending the settlement of a different policy. That a practical way exists I have no doubt; that it will ever be adopted depends upon the power for long suffering possessed by the American people. Business waits today for certainty. In a few months we will be in a new Congressional campaign. Whatever is settled now may be completely torn apart. To keep the Tariff in politics means that 355,401 establishments representing $6,524,475,305 invested capital, using $5,158,898,353 worth of materials produced by other industries and putting on the markets $9,370,107,624 worth of goods, must be operated with a degree of uncertainty which affects 4,711,832 employees, whose annual wages amount to $2,382,833,365.

"If the Tariff should be laid according to a defined principle agreeable to the common sense of an industrious Nation, it is reasonable to conclude that such minor modifications as trade conditions dictated might be made by expert officials hands without discussing the whole subject from anise seed to yams, at every crossroads from Maine to Texas, and running hot plow shares through every factory enter-prise in America.

"I think that all fair minded men will agree that the Tariff question should be taken out of politics. Political sagacity, if not political science, should point out the way, for it is sure to prove a millstone around the neck of both parties and may cause such intolerable suffering and cost as to wholly reconstruct party lines amid much social suffering and confusion."

WHY WOOL DROPPED.

Eli Perkins Explains the Reason for the Decline in Prices.

"When I was in Australia and Thibet a year ago," says Eli Perkins, "I found why the price of wool fell in the United States in spite of the McKinley Tariff of 10 cents a pound."

"What caused this?" was asked.

"It was the wonderful increase of sheep in Australia."

"What caused this increase?"

"A mania struck England to raise sheep in Australia. Thousands of young Englishmen went there and established sheep ranches. It was the fad. Englishmen were crazy to put their money into sheep ranches in Australia. The climate is mild there and sheep thrive. The lambs all lived. Shepherds could be had for $5 a week and rations. When I was there Australia already had 70,000,000 sheep and a population of only 4,000,000 people."

"And how many sheep were there in the United States?"

"We had only 45,000,000 sheep and 65,000,000 people. This made too many sheep and too much wool for the world's market. The result was wool went down in Thibet, India, Circassia, Australia and finally all over the world."

"What was wool worth then?"

"Why, cargoes were shipped from Australia and Thibet for from 7 to 13 cents a pound. As soon as they paid the 10 cents duty to get it into the United States these foreign wools were worth 17 to 23 cents—the price of our wool."

"Then our wool was 10 cents a pound higher than Thibet wool?"

"Certainly the wool fell in value in the United States on account of the immense crop of wool made on cheap public lands in Australia, but our wool has always been 10 cents a pound higher than foreign wool. The McKinley Bill has benefited our farmers. When the Wilson Bill takes off this duty you will see our wool will be only worth as much as cheap Australian wool, with the freight added. When Mr. Wilson talks about free wool increasing the price of wool in America he is talking foolishness. Wilson says 'free wool will enable our manufacturers to send cloth to Europe.'"

"Will it do this?"

"No; we will never ship one yard of cloth or one knit shirt, or one yard of carpet to Europe till we have their low wages—yes, less than their low wages—because we will have to pay the freight. A child can see that. The American farmer sees the awful drop of wool since the Wilson Bill came out, and he will soon have an object lesson by seeing his wool competing with wool worth just 10 cents a pound less than his has been."

MISS DOLLIE ROSE.

She Thanks "The Ledger" Readers For Stamps They Have Sent.

MANCHESTER, O., April 13th, 1894. Editor Public Ledger: Received a large lot of cancelled stamps by express, for which I am very grateful and wish you to thank your generous readers through your paper for their kindness.

I receive stamps every day, and if all or even the half of them were good it would not take long to get the 1,000,000. I often lose over half.

The stamps should not be torn, and the perforation must not be cut off. Stamps from Government envelopes should be cut out square, not round, with a margin on all sides about one-quarter of an inch wide.

I am surprised to see the interest the kind people are taking in collecting these stamps for me. I am very grateful to you, kind Editor, and also your readers.

Do you know the number of stamps that were sent in box? There were 5,000 in first package.

[There were about 75,000 stamps in the box to which Miss Rose refers.—Ed. LEDGER.]

WHY IS THIS TRUST?

Sam Stairs Becomes a Strong Advocate of Protection.

This paper has more than once noticed that Democrats suddenly become Protectionists when the effects of the Free-trade tad are brought to their own front doors.

What The Reporter says of Augusta may be truly said of the United States. The strange part of it is, however, that the Augusta Editor doesn't want his own fellow countrymen, who do business less than fifty miles away and who pay taxes to support the Government of this country, to reap any trade from his town, while he insists on a policy that encourages the whole American Nation to buy goods from men who do business five thousand miles away and who pay not a cent for the support of this Government. Just hear Sam Stairs the Protectionist:

ABOUT TRADING AT HOME.

Augusta Reporter—Gus Wolf, the clothing man of Cincinnati, was in town Saturday. He reports that he did a business of $300 that day, and took orders for $600 worth of clothing on a previous trip a few weeks ago, taking out of Augusta $500 in a few weeks. Augusta's profit in the transaction is derived from wearing city made clothes and the price of two days' board for one man.

We have nothing to say against Mr. Wolf or his goods, or his manner of doing business, but we do say there is too much trade of every description going away from Augusta, when the money ought to be kept at home, and kept circulating among our own people.

In this both the people and our merchants are to blame. The people should trade at home even if they have to pay a few cents more on some things, while our merchants should advertise and let the people know what kind of bargains they have to offer. In nine cases out of ten it is advertising in some way that takes people to Cincinnati for goods when they could do as well or better here if the facts were known.
